The office, finished

The office's first floor with its loose ends tied: a master suite with its own lounge behind a sliding wall, two bathrooms on the existing drains, and a kids wing with one door.

- Your end of the house is one suite behind one door: bedroom over the garden, his and hers dressings, your shower room, and a lounge with its own bathroom. Slide the 1.6 m wall open and bedroom and lounge become one 29 m² room with two garden views; slide it shut for a quiet bedroom while the other one watches TV next door.
- Hers is a proper walk-in, about 1.5 times his: wardrobes on two walls, a dressing peninsula and a curved full-height mirror where the wall rounds into the suite hall. His is its own closed room with a 2 m wardrobe run.
- At the top of the stair you face a bookcase, with the kitchenette niche (sink + under-counter fridge) and a laundry cupboard (stacked washer/dryer + linen) on your left: morning coffee and the washing never go downstairs.
- The children have their own wing: one door from the landing opens to a small lobby where the double room, the play room and their bathroom each have their own door. Nobody walks through anyone's room. Over the kids bath sits a secret loft reached by a ladder in the play room.
- The prayer room has a solid wall for the icons with the candle stand beside them, four seats facing it and a soft side window; its curved corner lets the landing swing round towards the kids' wing.
- Nothing has to be built later. Stage 3: the play room becomes the third child's bedroom, and when the children grow up the lounge becomes a 4th bedroom with its own bathroom. Shut the sliding wall and use the hidden door.

What came from which plan

- Ground floor: H4's, copied verbatim (T1-R3 ground via H2).
- O1 (KK 1): skeleton: master over the west garden with the bed on the west wall and the terrace door, east-garden room behind a slider on the X −101.0 line, hers + his stacked in the west bay, kids double room east-street with twin 1.1 m beds + shared nightstand and two desks, play room west-street, kids bath on W2.
- O5 (Angles 2): the curved prayer wall and the corridor that bends at 45° towards the kids. Here it is a quarter-circle that rounds the prayer room's corner and turns the landing into the kids lobby.
- O1 / O4 / O5 service row: kitchenette + laundry beside the east-garden room's WC/shower on stack E1 (now a kitchenette niche + a stacked-laundry cupboard).
- O2 / O3 (island dressings) + H4: hers with a curved wall; the island becomes a 0.9 × 1.0 peninsula because hers is 2.9 m wide (needs ≥ 2.6 m clear between wardrobe fronts).
- T1-R1 / T2-A: one suite door with a suite hall (pocket doors to shower room, his, hers); T1-R1's hidden door idea (here: the lounge's landing door); T1-R3 / T2-A: ladder loft over the kids bath.
- T2-D / H2: the suite lounge and its own shower as the future en-suite bedroom (Daniel 19 Oct, 20:04).
