T1-R1, softened

T1-R1's bones with the office's curves: a hotel-style suite with a lounge that slides open to the bed, an inner chapel with an apse, and a kids wing behind one door.

- Up the stair, two steps into the landing lobby and the suite door is on your left. Inside, the suite hall runs to the bedroom at the garden end, past his and hers; at its other end a round foyer leads to the shower room.
- Bedroom and lounge are one 30 m² room when the 1.65 m sliding wall is open, and two quiet rooms when it is shut. The lounge has its own WC + shower, so in 15 years it becomes a bedroom with no building work.
- Hers is a real walk-in: wardrobe wall, a 0.9 × 1.4 island, shoe and bag shelves and a curved wall. His is a closed room with a sliding door.
- A small chapel in the middle of the house: no window needed, the icon wall sits in a curved apse facing east, bench for 3–4, candle stand.
- The children have their own wing behind one door: double room, play room (bedroom 3 later), their own bath off the little lobby, and a secret den over the bath reached by a ladder from the play room.
- Washer-dryer column, linen and a kitchenette with sink at the landing, so night feeds, laundry and tea never go downstairs.

What came from where – Ground floor: H4's, copied verbatim.

– T1-R1: the skeleton — master bedroom in the west garden corner, suite lounge in the east garden bay, master shower room on W1, lounge shower on E1, kids bath on W2, play room west street, double room east street, suite hall on the middle line.

– T0: the suite-hall idea — the lounge has its own door to the landing (built now as a flush hidden door), so it can shut off from the suite on its own at stage 3.

– O1 / O5: the service row at the landing on E1 (kitchenette with sink, stacked washer-dryer, linen); twin 1.1 m beds with a shared nightstand and two desks in the double room; kids bath reached only from the corridor side.

– O5: the curved prayer apse, here bulging into the landing so no void is left behind it; O4 / O5: the 45° kink — the kids lobby enters the double room through a 45° wall.

– O2 / O3: hers with an island and a curved wall (the curve is the entry hall's round foyer).

– T2-A / T2-D: secret den in the 3.2 m height over a bath, reached by a ladder (here from the play room).

– New in T1-R1: bedroom 19.1 → 14.8 m² (clear) because the lounge gains (13.8 → 14.7 m²) and joins it through a 1.65 m sliding wall; his closed with a slider; hers 6.7 → 7.6 m² with the island; prayer moves off the facade to the inside, laundry becomes a stacked column so the kitchenette fits beside it.
